Girl Who Knows All About "Smell" Creek Says Fish of Creek Are Not Fit to Eat

Charlie Page's Shell creek shell game and his policy of having bus ewear to his fairy tales about Spavinaw and its water is becoming so chinaxions to the public that even children are beginning to give him the laugh and to give him the bush and to give him the laugh and to give him the laugh and to give him the bush and to give him the laugh and to give him the bush and to give him the bush and the bush a press.

A 15-year-old girl, who refused to give her name for 'family reasons,' frate and heated over the statements made by the child in the Democrat Sunday, stalked into the office of The World this morning and declared herself ready to debate the question with the boy if he wanted to or in 'box his cars if he insisted on telling any more such lies about Spayingw.

And from her appearance there is little doubt that she could score a kneckout in the first round of either a debate or a boxing match. In size just a quarter of an inch faller than she was wide and a fine testimpny of the health that is found in Spavinaw water, which she says she has been drinking for years.

"If the cattle that that how talks about can't find enough water to drink in Spavinaw, then they are gire some thirsty cattle, I'd say," she declared. "Why I've been up to Spavinaw in the hottest months of the summer and the water is always pure and fresh and there is plenty of it all the time."

Couldn't Eat the Fish

"Twe gone fishing with my father every summer. We used to go to Shell creek but the water was so bad that we couldn't even eat the fish they had a bad smell even after they were cooked. Most of them were dead anyway from the staff that drained into the creek from the fields on each side of it. There are kinds of fish that I wouldn't eat in other places before we went to Shell creek, but i'd eat any kind of fish now before I'd touch anything that came out of that drive old hole.

out of that dirty old hole. "For the last few summers we've been going to Spavinaw, right where they want to build the dam, and I never have seen the time when there wasn't plenty of good, clear water there and nobody ever heard of the fish smelling or tasting bad from the water uncle living in the buttoms. I'd say he better get out before the next hard rain comes along and washes

She's Got Page's Number.

'That kid talked about the had roads to Spaying well, we drive up there in a car every summer and we never have any frouble at all getting over the road. When we went to Shell Creek we couldn't even drive up there in the cor. The roads went so punk, we had to get out and push most of the way. You might get there with a harse and burgs but if you had any kind of a loadyou couldn't get over those sandyold marks at all If people are going to listen to what Page must his oil papers they it hear alkiels of things that first list a heen making promises even since I could read the papers and that was a long time ago, but haven't ever heard of him clarying any of them ou! He west and published something the other day about the rain falling his the same at Shell Creek as it did a Spayinaw. It ain't where the rain fattle but what it falls in the wounts. That old land around his place is so full of cattle and what ever discasses those cattle have that the place where the water does fall makes it is potten that nothedy can drink it. And even it halp known that Charile Page won't build a time basin for it to

"I'm for Spavinaw and so is everybody who knows anything about it. I have sense enough to know that if Tuba is going to be any good that it will have to have good water and the people sure won't get any good water out of Shall Crock."

She stalked out of the office still wowing that she would "like to get hold of the loy who made such lying statements in the Domocrat" bearing out the statement that even children can see through the plans of Charlie Page and his "Smell" Creek fiasco.
